MIGNE, Jacques Paul [1800-75]

I BELIEVE that I am furnishing appreciable aid to students of literature or history by printing a list of the names of the authors whose works are to be found in Migne's Second Series of Greek Ecclesiastical writers. It has not been my intention to imitate the elaborate and perfect Indices which accompany the Latin Series: such a task would be best undertaken by someone acting in alliance with or under the supervision of the Publishers of the complete issue. My own comparatively insignificant undertaking, while it meets an obvious want, cannot be said to entrench upon any general scheme of a larger and more complete character. I can only hope that the sight of the series of volumes, the contents of which I am endeavouring to render slightly more accessible to students, may excite the ambition of some historical genius to do justice to the ecclesiastical annals of the empire whose secular fortunes have been perfectly described by Gibbon. It will be understood that I pass no critical opinion on the genuineness of many works the names of the supposed authors of which I am bound to record: nor am I led by any theological velleities, or a desire to subserve any but strictly literary and historical enquiries.
